LURE OF THE GOLDEN WEST IS ON EAST

Earl Pendroy, Returning, Sees No Prospect of Let-up in Westward Travel

PRICES GO UPWARD

Finds Kansas Limiting Its Production; Sees Higher Yardage Cost

Earl Pendroy, the dry goods merchant, who returned the last of the week from an eastern trip to study market conditions and prospects, has an interesting report to make of his observations from a trade viewpoint, but the strongest impression he brought back is the "so different" look of the middle west to one who has been a resident of California for a year. He had occasion to stop in St. Louis and the dirty, cold, smoke-filled atmosphere seemed very dismal and gloomy to him by comparison with the golden state he had left behind. Business conditions he found good, better than a year ago, and a general feeling of optimism with regard to the future. The final depths of the financial depression seemed to have been sounded and now there is an upward movement with every prospect of an advance in prices. This he considers the natural reaction from the forced liquidation which drove men to bankruptcy and put them out of business, and which had no less drastic reactions on producers and manufacturers. The cotton which was a drug in the market has been absorbed, but the grower cannot produce it with any margin of profit at the price it has been bringing, 15 cents, and will not produce it unless it advances. The advance has already begun and is now around 27 cents. This advance and the cleaning up of bankrupt stocks, will mean higher prices for cotton yardage of all kinds. Mr. Pendroy leaves, because labor is not getting back to the wage of 1914. Any attempt to restore those figures precipitates strikes and cuts down production. Mr. Pendroy visited Kansas City and his old stamping ground, Newton, Emporia and Hutchinson, Kansas. The same reaction he found among the farmers who had suffered as heavily as did the cotton growers from the post-war slump in the prices of costly beef, pork and wheat, and they are cutting down their production until they see better margins. The upward trend seemed to run all along the line among the survivors. Many a man whom he had known as a millionaire had been caught in the crash and reduced to poverty. Almost every one with whom he conversed was interested in the fact that he came from California and all declared their intention of going to California as soon as circumstances would permit. It appeared to be the haven toward which they were looking and all were interested in learning about conditions here. He traveled via Santa Fe and found the trains running with more than one section because of the heavy westward travel. Sales in the line of clothing on this movement toward California: "I can see no let-up in prospect in this travel which is largely due to our wonderful climate and the activity and business prosperity of this section. The possibility of so much out-door life the year around is very enticing to the people back there who have to be shut indoors so much of the time and of course any one who has ever been in California naturally wants to come back."

AIM OF THE COMMUNITY SERVICE IN GLENDAL

To make Glendale a spotless town,
To keep her morals clean;
To bring more sunshine raining down
Than many a heart has seen;
To make the kids—both girls and boys,
More cheerful, happy, true;
To make of life one round of joys—
This service strives to do.
To educate, uplift, assist,
Each citizen in town;
To bring clean sport, and to enlist
A smile and not a frown;
To help the young and old alike,
More satisfied to grow;
A hundred other benefits
"C. S." would have you know.
—MARPLE.

City Licenses for Pups Are Ready Now

Dog owners get busy; the license on your pup will expire February 1.
The Glendale dog catcher is getting his "catching shoes" all shined up and ready to go. He says that as soon as February 1 rolls around, he's going to making a cleaning of a lot of the mutts in this town.
So, if you love that little dog as much as you do the rest of the family, you had better tie a brand new "charm" to his collar within the next few days.
If you don't, he'll take a trip to the place where they live happy ever after.

DRAMA WEEK CELEBRATED BY CLASS

Play Rehearsals Suspended for Reading in Glass

This is "national drama week" and in recognition of the fact, classes in dramatic art under the instruction of Harold Brewster have suspended play rehearsals for reading of some of the new plays Monday before two of the classes Mr. Brewster read the "House of Rimmon" by Henry Van Dyke to illustrate the combination of the poetic and religious type of play.
During the balance of the week drama students will bring to class 40-minute cuttings from three or four-act plays which they will read. The debate with San Diego on the question "Shall the French war loan from the United States be cancelled?" will take place Friday night. This will be a Southern California League event.

BUILDING BOOM STARTS IN EAST GLENDAL

Gassians to Build Big Block; Mrs. McNany Constructing

O. Gassian and M. Gassian, brothers, and owners of the southwest corner of Glendale avenue and Colorado street, are making plans for the construction of a large business block on their property, according to a report that reached the office of the Glendale Press today. This building, it is rumored, will cost between $50,000 and $60,000, and will contain eight storerooms on the ground floor and apartments above.
On Colorado street, close to Glendale avenue, Mrs. J. B. McNany is constructing a tile garage, 50x150 feet in size, and costing about $8000. When completed this will be occupied by a local garage man. The construction work is being done by the McKean Construction company.
It has definitely been learned that the owners of the southwest corner of Glendale and Colorado, comprising three lots, refused $45,000 recently for their holdings.

SCHOOL BOND ELECTION TO BE DEFERRED

Legality of Annexation of Strip Along River Is Questioned

AFFECTS DIST. ASSETS

County Counsel Advises Board Against Action Until After Court Acts

The expansion of the fastest growing city in the United States has brought problems which affect many interests one of which Superintendent Richardson D. White has encountered in connection with preliminary proceedings for the calling of a school bond election.
He has been advised by City Attorney Shaw that the legality of a district reaching across the river to Griffith Park on the west, has been challenged on the charge that the proceedings were not legal, before the Superior Court which will either confirm or cancel the proceedings. In either case it will settle the status of that territory with regard to the Glendale school district. It is expected the decision will be rendered within a few weeks and the County Council has advised the Board of Education not to call the election until after the decision is rendered because of uncertainty in regard to the boundaries of the Glendale School District might so complicate the situation that the bonds could not be sold. As the decision will be made in a short time and will settle the question definitely, it is expected the board will decide at its meeting tonight to postpone the calling of the election.
In the meantime, Mr. White has asked the county office to provide the board with a map showing the exact boundaries of the Glendale City School district.

Girls' League Members Pose As Models for Display

Glendale High had an educational fashion show this morning in the auditorium during the last period before noon, when a demonstration of suitable dress for different occasions was made with the help of models drawn from members of the girls' league.
Miss Beth Abbott, head of the art department, was fortunate in securing Mrs. Geffene of Los Angeles to give a talk to the girls on suitable dress, particularly school costumes, and the hats to be worn with them. She also showed some evening and afternoon gowns.
A careful selection was made to secure as models girls of all the different types to illustrate the talk and display the gowns and hats, the girls chosen being Jane Richardson, Evelyn Hunt, Nadine King, Catherine Guthrie, Vivian Noy, Ida Olmstead, Lois Olmstead, Mildred Osmun, Evelyn Traver, Charlotte Corvella, Dorothy McDowell, Gladys Peckham, Beatrice Baker, Emma Laura Cooper and Rose Nelson. The lecture lasted from 11:40 to 12:30 and Mrs. Geffene was assisted by Viola Johnson, a Glendale girl, who is employed in Los Angeles and who aided in selecting the costumes to be worn by the different models.

FIVE AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS HERE

Five automobile accidents occurred in Glendale yesterday. They lived things up considerably at the times and places at which they happened, but no serious damage was done.
Automobiles driven by E. H. Kober, 110 West Broadway and George E. Werkel of Burbank, cut up a few capers at the corner of Brand and Broadway at 8 o'clock Monday night. Slight damage resulted to the machines, but no one was hurt.
Another little fracas occurred at the corner of Broadway and Howard at 4:50 Monday afternoon, when an automobile driven by S. C. Jackson, 336 West Hawthorne, and another operated by a person whose name could not be learned, came together. The damage was trifling.

MRS. C. H. TOLL IS TUESDAY CLUB'S CANDIDATE

Endorsed for Head of District Federation of Women's Clubs

One of the most important actions taken by the Board of Directors of the Tuesday Afternoon Club at its all-day meeting Monday in the home of Mrs. J. T. Crampton, was the adoption of a resolution which will be presented to the club for passage at the meeting today, endorsing Mrs. Charles H. Toll of this city as candidate for the presidency of the District Federation of Women's Clubs.
The meeting began at 9:45 and did not end until 4:15 p. m. A good deal of time was consumed in the consideration of rental schedules for the new club house under which it could be rented in part in a variety of combinations or as a whole. The discussion followed a report by a sub-committee presented by Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, who acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. John Dunn.
The check for $400, the gift of Mr. Simons of the Simons Brick company, was received and the board decided to expend it for an up-right piano which will be part of the furnishings of the banquet hall of the club.
The names of applicants for membership were received and voted into the club to be reported at today's meeting.

HIGH HOLDS SHOW OF FASHIONS IN DRESSES

Results Will Be Known This Evening by Six o'Clock

The election at Glendale High proceeded this morning very quietly, the election board consisting of Ronald West, Thomas McClellan and Kathleen Campbell. The voting booth, which generally serves as a ticket office, left something to be desired in the way of secrecy, being unprovided with a curtain, and election officers were not rigid in the exclusion of more than one person from the booth when the ballot was to be cast. Otherwise it was quite like a real, truly election out in the big world. The results will not be known until this evening, as the polls will be open until late in the afternoon.

The committee will have a conference this week with the powers that be in banking circles and report to the Credit association at its next meeting.
The committee appointed to look into conditions and report on the advisability of staging a local "Parade of Progress" or trade exposition within the next four months, asked for more time as it had not been able to function.

OUR PEACOCK IS SEEN STRUTTING THROUGH GOTHAM

Mr. James Rhoades, Chamber of Commerce, Glendale, Calif.
My Dear Rhoades: Enclosed please find one-half page illustration of Glendale's peacock, taken from the New York Sunday Times Rotogravure section of the 14th inst.
I quote from my friend's letter: "I am California crazy—from all the beautiful accounts and when so beautiful upon paper, what must it be to the eye?"
"I wish you could see from our windows today: much different from what you write us of beautiful California, as it's snowing so thick and fast since early morning that it's doubtful if people will get to work Monday, as the cars will not be running."
"I know we would go simply crazy over the beautiful flowers and the wonderful sights, and no doubt Glendale is very proud of such a great honor it must be wonderful to live in such a heavenly spot."
Glendale apparently is not only "the fastest growing city" but is becoming one of the best advertised cities, thanks to our genius, Mr. Chobe.
Yours as ever,
H. S. McCORMACK.

ELKS HEAR BOY SCOUT PROGRESS

D. W. Pollard Tells of the Big Brother Movement of Order

REPORTS ACTIVITIES

Declares Youngsters Follow Their Leaders in Dead Earnest

"Good work is being done thru the Big Brother Movement," so declared D. W. Pollard, national field representative of the Boy Scouts of America, who gave a very stirring talk last evening at the Elks club. Mr. Pollard spoke of the work done by the Elks through the Big Brother Movement during the past 15 years. He cited incidents when he was in Chicago where wonderful results had been attained through the Big Brother contact of the man and the boy. He likened the Boy Scout troop to the Big Brother Movement. "It not only helps the individual boy but it takes advantage of the gang instinct and through the patrol and troop organization enables the scoutmaster to be a big brother to not only one, but many boys."
Mr. Pollard cited incidents of the splendid results secured through scouting, especially around the under privileged boys sponsored by the Elks in Southern California cities. In one city 40 boys, one-third of whom were under the supervision of the probation officer, and the balance, boys with little or no home life were adopted by the Elks and made scouts. In one year these boys had taken the prize for all around scout advancement and one member of that group took the first place in a Scout point contest among all the Scouts of the district. In this same troop the boys started a "chip-in" club to buy a wooden leg for a newboy and in another instance one boy volunteered and gave himself in a serious operation of skin grafting to save the life of a small boy. He volunteered because he was a Scout.
We have eight million boys of Scout age waiting for the splendid program of Scouting and we can get it across to them providing we can get the leadership. "Men Wanted" is the sign up in every city and town, but as emphasized by Mr. Pollard, "We need real men—men of character and personality who are willing to give time in the training of America's greatest asset, her boys."
Mr. Pollard said boys play "follow your leader" in dead earnest and it is highly important that the right leader be secured if the boy is to develop into a useful citizen. "Our jails are filled with young men who followed the wrong leader. Thirty-one per cent of the young men in San Quentin are under 21 years of age."
Mr. Pollard closed his talk by urging the members of the Elks to get behind the forward movement now under way to develop Scouting in the Verdugo Hills district.

In spite of the stormy weather, 150 to 200 Elks attended the meeting of the lodge at which twelve new members were elected.

Following the business session a fine program was given by friends of John Roman, who are non-professional artists. Mme. Teodora Wisniewska, a coloratura soprano, with a very beautiful voice; sang "Una Voce Poco Fa," from Rossini's "Barber of Seville," "Glorieta," by Sibelius, "Vesperi Siciliani" (Verdi), and an air from "The Snow Maiden," by Rimsky-Korsakoff. She was accompanied on the piano by her teacher, Mme. Felicia Romanowska of this city. The singer was warmly applauded and responded with an encore.
Others on the program were Miss Eugenia Natucka, a talented young violinist who was also the recipient of tremendous applause, to which she replied with a couple of encores.
The program was concluded with a toe dance by 12-year-old Miss Irene Wilkowska, whose excellent performance was enthusiastically received.

STOLEN JEWEL CASE FOUND

A red plush jewel case was found lying at the corner of Harvard and Orange streets by Jesse Stine at 8:45 o'clock Sunday night. Mr. Stine did not touch the case, but called the Glendale police. Officer Connors took the case to police headquarters. It was later found to have been stolen from W. A. Webster, 115 1/2 South Brand, whereupon it was turned over to its rightful owner.

MUSIC INSTITUTE OF SERVICE HAS FIRST MEETING

The first meeting of the music institute for training volunteer song leaders held last night at the music room of the high school under the direction of Alexander Stewart, Pacific coast organizer for National Community Service, proved most interesting. A large number who have expressed their desire of attending the institute meetings were unable to attend last night owing to several organizational meetings. Those who have registered include: Mrs. A. A. Barton, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Mitchell, Lillian Criswell, Hazel Jacquiss, Alta Gray, Mrs. W. Q. Widdows, Mrs. F. P. Southworth, Mrs. Alice Buck, Mrs. O. G. Thompson, Francis J. W. Henry, L. T. Rowley, H. S. Robinson, F. C. Butterfield, Miss Dorothy Peart, Dr. John Anderson, L. C. Leeds, Mrs. W. A. Kulp and Miss Wilma Kulp.

Mr. Stewart plans to concentrate on teaching sixteen songs, which will be supplemented by others. Those attending the Friday evening session are asked to bring note books and pencils. At last night's meeting emphasis was laid on the correct manner of attack and release as indicated by the song leaders, and also methods of keeping time.

This institute is being conducted as a part of the Glendale Community Service program, but at the expense of the national organization, of which Mr. Stewart is the representative. It is desired that all clubs, churches and organizations of the city be represented in order that volunteer leaders may be trained to take charge of community singing, should they desire it to be included in their programs.

Howard Edward Cavanah has completed arrangements with Miss Mabel E. Carrow, authorized exponent of the Dunning System of Improved Music Study for Beginners, to conduct classes at his studios, 214-A East Broadway, suite 6, upstairs. By this system, little folks from three years of age and upwards are taught through games. This system was originated by Mrs. Carte L. Dunning of Buffalo, who studied for many years under Fraulein Prentner and Leschetizky in Vienna. It has the endorsement of the world's masters, such as Leschetizky, Scharwenka, De Pachmann, Gabrilowitsch, Carrero, Mason, Tauscher and others.

The Dunning system is said to be improved, economical, instructive and teaches correct fundamental principles. Practiced becomes a pleasure, for the child is taught to think in music and thoroughly understands the most important points before making an attempt to play an instrument.

The lessons are adapted to both advanced pupils and beginners. The child's natural love of play is utilized for teaching the ideas to be imparted, thus that which is usually work in learning becomes play and play becomes real study that will prove itself of the greatest value in the child's first years of music. The children are formed into classes and taught by means of symbols, ingenious keyboards with grand staff attached, interesting games, stories and songs. Sight reading forms a part of every lesson. Written work is employed to teach that music is a language, and real piano work illustrates all principles taught. Further information may be obtained by communicating with Mr. Cavanah, studio telephone Glendale 2385-J, residence telephone Glendale 1266-R.

Glendale Press Opens Department for Those Seeking Friends

In this cosmopolitan Southern California of ours, we have often thought that perhaps an old friend may live just around the corner, or in the next block, but the change in name, address, and sometimes in appearance prevents our finding that we were friends ten, thirty, or fifty years ago. A man who has changed his business or employment, and with the passing years his face has changed some, too, might meet a boyhood friend on the street, and neither would recognize the other. A lady's matron name often obscures her from those with whom she was associated many years before her marriage, or a second marriage may have taken place.

The purpose in creating this column is to help these people to find each other. Compliance with a few simple requirements will make it easy to assist. Here are two models, one for women and one for men, which should be followed in giving information. Write the names and addresses that you wish to have published and mail them to our Identification Editor, Mrs. Mary C. Beauchamp, 1214 South Glendale avenue, Glendale, or phone Glendale 1287-J, between 10 o'clock a. m. and noon on Monday, Tuesday or Thursday.

GLENDAL MUSIC CLUB'S JUVENILE UNIT MEETS

A most enthusiastic meeting of the juvenile auxiliary of the Glendale Music Club was held Saturday afternoon at the Intermediate school with Susie Smith, president, and Rebecca Brant, recording secretary, in charge. Helen White, corresponding secretary, resigned, and Wilma Kulp was elected to fill that position. The members so enjoyed the meeting that it was decided that they would meet every two weeks. The next meeting will be two weeks from last Saturday at the home of Mrs. W. A. Kulp, 355 Vine street.

The program given Saturday afternoon included: Piano solos by Adrianna Laurence, Marguerite Chappell, Eloise Knaus and Susie Smith; vocal duet, by Wilma and Frances Kulp. At the close of the program refreshments of punch and wafers were served by Mrs. Grace Jackson and Mrs. W. A. Kulp. Mrs. H. V. Henry, Mrs. Knaus and Mrs. Thim were guests.

WILSON AVENUE P-T-A MEETS AT SCHOOL

At the regular meeting of the Wilson Avenue Intermediate Parent-Teacher Association, held at the school yesterday afternoon, with Mrs. R. C. Horner, president, in charge, a very interesting talk on high school problems was given by Mrs. G. U. Moyse, vice-principal.

The meeting was opened with the flag salute led by Mrs. J. F. Torrey. Mrs. Kent gave two interesting vocal solos, "Oh, Mr. Piper" and "Mathilda." Mrs. W. Q. Widdows, president of the high school parent-teacher association, was present and gave a short talk on Community Service. Announcement was made of the "Fathers' Night" to be held at the Wilson Avenue school on February 12. The plan is to have all of the parents of children just entering that school as the special guests. The various classes will provide the entertainment and refreshments.

The association decided to assist the graduating class in raising money for their class memorial by taking charge of serving the lunch at the school cafeteria on Thursday, February 1.

In her talk Mrs. Moyse spoke regarding plans for the next half year's work at the high school and urged cooperation and interest in the work of the P-T-A. She said in part: "The first half year in high school is the most important of the whole high school career. The child must guide himself more than in the grammar schools and must get accustomed to the new regime. The parents may help them not only by knowing the teachers, but also the mother of the boy or girl with whom their child associates, which is of vital importance." The necessity for home study on the part of the students was also emphasized by Mrs. Moyse.

"It is a great mistake for parents to have their children go to high school without them getting some social contact and taking part in the activities of the school. The more organizations there are the better chance a larger number of students have to develop leadership. Books are only a part of the high school life. The ability to deal with people and social contact are also important," she stated.

At the close of the business session the count of the mothers present was taken and it was found that Miss Jackson's class had the largest percentage of mothers represented. Announcement was made of the federation bazaar to be held at the high school on February 23. The Wilson Avenue Intermediate P-T-A will have charge of the cake baking contest. Mrs. Kate Brew Vaughn of the Los Angeles Express will send out recipes for several kinds of cake and will be one of the judges at the contest. Prizes are to be awarded.

The members then adjourned to the domestic science room, where refreshments of tea and wafers were served and a social half-hour was enjoyed.

AUTO BUCKS SNOW IN TRIP FROM S. DAKOTA

Julian Pearson and Party
Come 2500 Miles in
21 Days

Julian Pearson was a guest Saturday night and Sunday of his parents, Isaac H. Pearson and wife of 644 East Harvard. He arrived from Belle Fourche, S. D., a few days ago, having driven through with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Montgomery, to join his wife and five of their children who had come west a month previous to visit the elder son and his wife, in Corona. The trip from Belle Fourche, 2500 miles, through Colorado via Denver and La Junta, then across New Mexico and Arizona, took 21 days. Some very bad roads were encountered. On three different occasions, in Arizona, their machine was conveyed through heavy snows by bobsleds that packed the road for them. Near Lusk, Arizona, they ran out of gasoline when four miles from the nearest station. After a tramp through the snow, a can of the precious liquid was secured and a friendly mail carrier conveyed it and the messenger back to the waiting auto. The gasoline was poured into the tank and a start was essayed. The starter refused to start and a hurried investigation showed that an open cock had let all of the liquid fuel out. Another trip was made to the distant station and a second 5 gallons secured, the mail man using his car for all these trips. Then, after a way was broken through the snow to Lusk, the journey was resumed. The auto in which the trip was made was previously used for two round trip journeys from Belle Fourche to Kentucky and it still is in excellent shape.

Julian will locate with his family in Ontario and resume his work as agent for a prominent life insurance company. A former associate in this work, Mr. Jackson, now a resident of Ventura, drove down to Corona, accompanied by his wife and mother, Saturday, to see his old friend, then brought him to Glendale on the way home.

MRS. SCHWITTERS HAS VISITORS FROM OGDEN
Mrs. Loretta Schwitters of North Adams street, recently installed as the Noble Grand of the Rebekah Carnation Lodge, had a delightful surprise Monday afternoon when her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Vanderberg, and baby, walked in upon her for a two weeks' visit. Their home is in Ogden, Utah.

OPEN HOUSE AT LA RAMADA IS BIG SUCCESS

The open house in the studio at La Ramada Sunday afternoon drew a group of about 75 Glendale interested in art to enjoy the exhibit of pictures provided by Mr. Moser of the Southern California Art club, who presided over the affair, and also for the purpose of effecting the organization of an art center.

Mrs. Roy Ballagh was elected president; Mr. Harold Swartz, vice-president; Mrs. L. E. Beach, secretary; Mrs. D. F. Reichard, treasurer.

A committee of three composed of Walter L. Cheever, L. T. Rowley and D. F. Reichard was appointed to draft by-laws, and a meeting will be held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Ballagh, 202 West Doran street, to perfect the organization.

One of the prime aims will be to raise a fund for the purchase and preservation of the wonderful old adobe building in which the exhibit was held, which is said by Mrs. Reichard to date back to the period of the American Revolution, when it stood upon what was then Camino El Real, sheltering the Franciscan fathers and others who sought the hospitality of the Verdugo family by whom it was built. The promoters of the movement believe there is enough civic pride and interest in historic relics to insure the preservation of this landmark of ancient days. They also believe the establishment there of an art center would mean much to the future of Glendale. In proof they point to Carmel-by-the-Sea, which has won fame through its artist colony. There is no reason, they say, why a Glendale art center such as this would be should not become equally noted. An additional and stronger reason is urged in the advantages it would offer the rising generation in the chance to study fine art collections.

LIP READING CLASS MEETS TO BEGIN LESSONS

The lip reading class which has been established at Glendale High met for organization Monday afternoon at 3:30. Not all those who had enrolled appeared for the lesson but it is expected they will be present at the next one which will be given in the school cafeteria at 2:30 o'clock. The aim is to help to an understanding of conversation through watching the lips, in other words to hear with the eyes, and those who are in the first stages of deafness may fortify themselves against advancing disability by taking time by the forelock and learning lip reading while they can still hear well enough to follow the instructions of the teacher.

MUSICIANS AT RECEPTION TO MME. LINNE

The musical program given Sunday at the Cleophas residence, in honor of Mme. Ragna Linne, was most interesting. This included vocal selections by Miss Cary Marshall of Chicago, Miss Florence Middaugh, Raymond Harmon, Miss Gilbert and Mrs. Maginus, and duet numbers by the latter two, all of whom are pupils of Mme. Linne. A very wonderful group of flute solos were given by Leonardo de Lorenzo, flutist of the Philharmonic orchestra of Los Angeles. He played several of his own compositions, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. De Lorenzo, who is an accomplished pianist.

Phyllis Fergus Hoyt of Chicago, gave a charming group of piano-logues, music for which was composed by herself. She is spending the winter in Los Angeles. The program for the afternoon also included some splendid piano selections by Miss Gertrude Cleophas. Mme. Linne graciously favored the guests with several vocal numbers. Harry James created a great deal of merriment by giving a group of monologues in his inimitable manner. Mr. Porter of Los Angeles, baritone singer and pupil of De Buser of Los Angeles, also gave a splendid group of songs.

Phyllis Fergus Hoyt of Chicago, who has traveled on Chautauque circuits and also appeared in Chicago, Minneapolis and St. Paul, is to take part in the program to be given at the home of Mrs. Cleophas for the benefit of the Tuesday Afternoon club house furnishings. Mme. Linne is a nationally known musician. She has sung in grand opera and also with practically every Philharmonic orchestra in the United States.

A dainty surprise in the form of Norwegian refreshments was given the guests, a feature being what is called the "bread and butter" table. Mrs. Cleophas was assisted in serving by Mrs. Ruel, Miss Anker-Holt and Mrs. Van Buskirk.

Truths in Epigram

Often the fear of one evil leads us into a worse.—Boileau.

Young men think old men are fools.—Chapman.

How swiftly passes the glory of the world!—Thomas A. Kempis.

Man is the artificer of his own happiness.—Thoreau.

THE WHOLE RACE YOUNG

In a sense, the races, in the aggregate composing what is known as civilization, are very young. This must be taken as referring to their intellectual birth. For countless years, half a million or more, men, in some primitive type had existed on the earth. How, into the senses crept gradually the power of abstract thought, and men began to change into the beings they now are; began to formulate tribal creeds, recognize a rude code of morals; figure out a course of action based on reason and not instinctive impulse, the scientists have endeavored to explain.

Consider the facts set forth as revealed by research. Say that men have existed for half a million years. It must then be admitted that until a comparatively recent date they had virtually the status of animals. Their desires were largely for food and shelter. These they accepted, but the thought of seedtime and harvest had not dawned. The cave served for roof. Even the leafy tree was depended upon as shield against the rain. So it went on century after century, consuming almost the entire period of human life. All the progress, the culture, the growth of knowledge has been in the last five thousand years a comparative trifle of time. In the beginning of such period change necessarily was slow. All things remained to be learned, and the mind reaching out tentatively, was exploring in the dark. Still, there was improvement.

Civilization, as this generation knows it, has made its real record in a few hundred years. At last the intellectual motion had become so marked that it gathered momentum. Onward it went, to new conquests. Men began to have great dreams, and striving to realize their dreams made a new world; the world of today.

Sometimes one views the struggle of the present, the clashing interests, the projected wars, and feels that civilization nears an end, that the whole structure is frail, and must fall into chaos. That is the view of extreme pessimism. While it might seem to be warranted by a glance at conditions without analysis of the measureless span out of which civilization has grown, and its feeble and laggard beginnings, these things must be taken into consideration, and when so taken, the prophesy of the pessimist fails. It is illogical. Civilization never has reached a ripened splendor, presaging the decay of energy with the completion of its task. It is growing still.

Civilization never has developed as within the last three centuries. It never before had displayed such speed of attainment, as within the last century. Its greatest material triumphs, and spiritual too, have been in the last fifty years; within the life of people still living and vigorous.

The civilization that crowns a multitude of centuries, is not to be ended by the rash folly of a mistaken generation.

NO DEADLINE OF YEARS

So active a man as Charles M. Schwab denies that there is an age deadline. By a deadline he means a stated point at which the man who toils mentally or physically, should be thrust aside as useless. In this he takes a view that not only is becoming popular, but that observation shows to be sound. Much harm was done by the theory imputed to Osler that a man at forty should be retired to make way for youth. Osler never said this of course.

Army officers are retired at 64, and naval officers at 62. Such rule is not because they are deemed unfit, but for the purpose of giving subordinate officers a chance at higher command. Before the age limit was thus fixed, a graduate of Annapolis might serve all his life without reaching a grade higher than a lieutenant.

The natural span of man, scripturally stated as seventy, was for a long time accepted without demur. Men learned how to take better care of themselves, and the length of human life, so extended as to render the rule inapplicable. Nobody, unless invader for other causes than age, thinks of deserting his accustomed tasks at sixty or thereabouts. At seventy he might quit. At eighty he might figure that he needed a rest, and take it.

In southern California where centenarians are common, and active men in the nineties are mentioned every day in the news, there could be scant patience with attempts to establish an age deadline. It simply isn't done any more.

USING DESPERATE REMEDIES

Citizens of Arkansas have interfered with a railroad strike by the process of hanging the leader of it. The strike had lasted for a long time, and been marked by violence. Sabotage had been practised. The strikers were believed to be determined to put the road out of business. Naturally the community was subjected to hardship through interference with traffic. It was not pleasing to be aware that bridges were being burned, and bombs were ready to destroy equipment. It is probable that in the circumstances, the public did not think of the original question as between employer and employed. No strikers, even on behalf of a just cause, may retain sympathy when they resort to criminal methods. However, the action of the citizens is not to be commended nor condoned.

There are courts in Arkansas. If the people of a community knew that sabotage prevailed, and were so certain as to the guilty as to execute the death penalty upon one of them, the facts should have been laid before a duly constituted tribunal, and the penalty prescribed after trial, and in a decent and dignified and lawful manner.

Citizens who take the law into their own hands, ignoring police powers and courts, are following the Ku Klux example, just at present stirring much adverse criticism.

FOR THE FUTURE

The editor of the Yoakum (Texas) Daily Herald was a visitor to this section of California during the holidays. Since going home he has written a series of articles portraying his impressions. These seem to have been all favorable, a circumstance not in the least surprising to residents. The sort of advertising southern California receives thus is far more valuable than might be purchased at space rates.

This Texas editor notes that southern California is building for the future. This is truly the case. As a proof he cites the vast sum of millions even now being put into the developments of hydro-electric power. He says:

"Water, power, light and irrigation are cheaper to the consumer in the west than anywhere else, except perhaps a few eastern states. Utilizing water power they have learned in California, results in the smallest loss of power, least waste of natural resources, and most inexpensive way of supplying electric energy to the consumer."

There is a complimentary word added concerning the good roads, the charm of the climate, the picturesque of the scenery, the artistry of the buildings. The profusion of growth of vegetation and fruits made a deep impression upon the visitor from Texas. He tells his readers all about these things, an act for which thanks are due; and he sends along a marked copy of his paper, which is another appreciated favor.

Little Jackie Coogan, largely by reason of the perfect pathos with which as Oliver Twist he holds up his pouting and says "More!" gets a bonus of $500,000 for signing a screen contract. But Jackie's histrionic abilities failed when he saw the check. He couldn't say "More!"

Chancellor Cuno says that Germany will refuse further payment to Italy, France and Belgium on the ground that they are treaty-breaking nations. It would appear, however, that technical excuses for refusal lose their value in the presence of an armed force.

HAVING A GOOD TIME

By DR. FRANK CRANE

One of the most pathetic spectacles is the human creature in his effort to have a good time.

We know almost every art in the world better than the art of enjoying ourselves.

We can build skyscrapers and magnificent cathedrals, we can paint beautiful pictures, we can write books and publish newspapers and run railroads, and we do all these things with tolerable efficiency.

But when we start out to have a good time we seem to leave all intelligence behind us.

That is because we forget the fundamental elements of fun.

These elements, as I have before pointed out, are: First, that the amount of fun we have depends upon the extent to which we use our imagination; second, that the amount of fun we have is directly proportioned to its cheapness, and the more money we spend the less fun we have; and third, that we cannot have real fun unless we keep the rules of the game and make other people around us happy as well as ourselves.

The extent to which these plain rules are overlooked is illustrated in the reports of the New Year's celebrations in the various cities.

Paris, which is supposed to be the chief fun emporium in the world, was the chief offender. Christmas and New Year's were there celebrated by a "champagne gusher" which could not be capped and flooded the city with the most expensive wines on record. For weeks every table at such places as the Cafe de Paris, Maxim's, Bal Ta Barlin, Moulin Rouge, and other famous restaurants, had been taken at high prices.

Many of these restaurants charged $20 a head for tables with meals and wine extra. The ordinary price for dinner was $50 and champagne was sold at a minimum of 125 francs a bottle.

The result was that these celebrations were rather exclusively American, as nobody but Americans had money enough to throw away in this fashion.

Similar carousals were held in the other capitals of the world.

All this would not be particularly objectionable if people got what they paid for. They do not. They go on under the delusion that a good time can be measured by the extravagant use of money.

It is the little people of the world who have the fun. It is the people who are disciplined and who work that enjoy themselves.

And to fancy that one can have a good time by eating $50 worth of food and drinking $50 worth of wine is about on a level with fancying that the inhabitants of an insane asylum laughing and shrieking and rattling their bars are happier than the people outside.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

CORRECT LOCATION

Readers of "The Right Word" column have discussed proper usage of the expression feel bad. Emphasis of a correct location is found in a recent novel. The expression feel bad is found again and again.

"She wondered how bad her mother felt" is one example. In this illustration bad refers to illness of the mind, to a disturbed mind, as it does also in the following: "Mamma! Don't cry. Don't feel so bad."

In the first part of the book there will be found the following: "Go away and play. Mamma feels bad." This time bad undoubtedly refers to physical condition, to state of health, to an ill condition of the body.

Bad, therefore, means ill, ill in mind or body, and it is correct to say, "I feel bad." It is, consequently, incorrect to say, "I feel badly."

One so often hears the expression, "He loaned me a book," or some other expression of a similar nature, that the question frequently arises whether it is proper to use loan as a verb; as, Roger loaned her ten.

The author of the same novel illustrates the right word to use in such an expression in "She hadn't the sixteen dollars, but Roger lent her ten."

Loan should be used as a noun and lend as a verb. One may say, "He made a loan at the bank," or, "The bank lent him $20,000."

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

On a given day, we will say, a message is to be given to every citizen of the United States.

A message by word of mouth.

One voice speaking to all ears.

Which is now possible, surprising as it may seem.

One person may stand at a given place and speak so all other persons in the country may hear.

A few years ago and that statement would have been jeered and hooted at.

Today it is a statement of plain truth.

The human voice will go around the world. By means of what is popularly known as the radio.

And the sound of the human voice travels rapidly.

More so than light.

For it is put forth upon a wave that travels at more than lightning speed.

Somewhere around 180,000 miles a second. As the small boy would say, that is going some.

Messages put upon the radio wave, have been heard at a distance of thousands of miles. Heard clearly and distinctly.

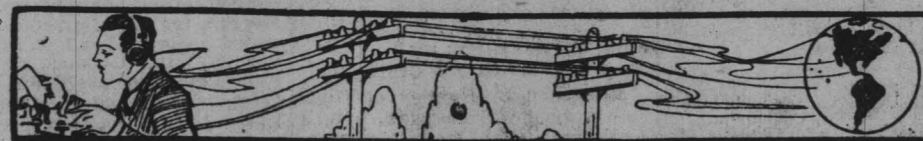

All that is necessary is for the hearer to be "tuned in."

Just as with the truth.

You have to be "tuned in" in order to receive it.

Your attitude of mind must be receptive. You must be inclined to hear.

And the "tuning in" for radio messages is merely a method of inclination to hear.

Songs of the Poets

"Oh, Lay Thy Hand In Mine, Dear"—By Gerald Massey (1828-1907)

Oh, lay thy hand in mine, dear!
We're growing old;
But Time hath wrought no sign, dear,
That heart grow cold;
Tis long, long since our new love
Made life divine;
But age enricheth true love,
Like noble wine.

And lay thy cheek to mine, dear,
And take thy rest;
Mine arms around thee twine, dear,
And make thy nest.

Ah, many cares are pressing
On this dear head;
But Sorrow's hands in blessing
Are surely laid.

Oh, lean thy life on mine, dear!
'Twill shelter thee.
Thou were a winsome vine, dear,
On my young tree:
And so, till boughs are leafless,
And songbirds flown,
We'll twine, then lay us, griefless,
Together down.

THE WISE, WISE, GRUNION

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

The grunion, as you may know, is a tiny fish that swims in schools of what seem illimitable numbers.

The grunion and its habits are of the deepest interest. It is a wise, wise fish. In the spring it appears in myriads along the Southern California coast, from San Pedro to Mexico.

In the fall and winter no man in any part of the world has ever seen a grunion. Where do they go? From whence do they come?

Nobody knows. They simply appear and disappear, which is the first mystery.

The second is this: To escape enemies this little fish must lay their eggs at the edge of the waters in the sand. In the month when the high tides run the fish army appears at midnight, after the full of the moon, succeeding the next to the highest tide.

Note that word "next." Why not the highest tide? Because after the "next" to the highest tide the water decreases and leaves the eggs to incubate in the warm sand.

Within two weeks, that is by the time the high tide of the following month is due, the eggs are in a condition that requires that they be washed out of the sand and back into the salt water.

The time of full moon is chosen because at that time the waters tend to be calm. Storms would of necessity wash the eggs out to sea and destroy them.

Only the salt water will liberate the occupants of the eggs, and they must not be liberated too soon or too late.

Now how does the grunion know the time of the tides? By what strange occult sense do these helpless things come by the knowledge through which only the species can survive? That is the second mystery.

But there is no mystery about the way that man receives the grunion host. The tiny creatures make delicious morsels of food; and so bathing parties equipped with nets and snares wade into the waves when the fish begin to lay and catch the little creatures in vast numbers.

That is not, however, the serious part of man's behavior. The serious part is that the bathing and fishing parties ruthlessly trample on the delicate, new laid eggs in the sand and so threaten the survival of the mysterious and wise grunion. Wonder why nature does not inform man that his conduct is inimical to the welfare of a host of beautiful creatures whose purpose in life we do not know.

Call the conduct of the grunion by any name you choose, but until we know how these fish know the things that alone enable them to survive we shall not have begun to know anything except that we are vandals interfering with something that has been directed by a higher power to live and breed.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

GOVERNOR COX'S SUGGESTION

[Lowell Courier-Citizen]

"More money and more honorable men," suggests Governor Cox, are required if the Volstead act is to be enforced. It is impossible to gainsay this dictum; but one may add that the amount of money and number of honorable men needed are so enormous as to make the quest a very expensive and, one fears, a fruitless one. If the governors at the White House were entirely candid they probably said among themselves that the whole business was utterly futile anyhow; but for the purposes of public outgiving, candor in this vexed matter, is never popular; and therefore the chief magistrates probably refrained from saying (for publication) all they thought. The country will be infinitely better off when more of us can bring ourselves to speak right out in meeting and say what we really believe. From first to last there has been more canting hypocrisy about this matter of the Volstead law than about any other proposition within living memory.

WASTED ENERGY

[Capper's Weekly]

In one respect the Harding administration is wasteful. The President shook hands with 1450 people the other day when that energy more usefully applied would have pumped 736 gallons of water or milked 94 cows.

GERMANY'S ATTITUDE

[Memphis Commercial Appeal]

The allies are beginning to suspect that Germany doesn't care who pays the reparations bill, just so she doesn't have to do it.

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

By HENRY JAMES

Two publicity men have planned to have their employers fight a duel. They got the plans published, too. Smart fellows, evidently.

Getting tired of a strike, people of Arkansas hanged the leading striker, beat some more, and chased the rest into tall timber.

The tomb of the great Pharaoh, just opened, shows signs of having been entered by thieves before.

A Los Angeles couple, parents of eleven children, say they are happy. And each of the youngsters is a musician, at that. There's optimism.

Schwab says there is no age deadline. One's views change as he approaches the point where such a line might be encountered.

Under the order that physical hazing must stop at U. S. C. that interesting operation probably will have to be conducted by correspondence.

One muddle-headed or corrupt juror can cause a mistrial. This doesn't seem right, somehow.

The peddling of narcotics ought to be a felony, since it inspires countless crimes so rated.

Killing a woman to prevent her from becoming a dope fiend is a new excuse for murder, and not yet passed upon judicially.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

When a pistol is thrust at a pedestrian, or a driver, or a surprised cashier, his first impulse is to obey the command of the holder of the weapon.

HENRY JAMES

A man would be foolish to give up his life for the sake of his money, which, even if saved, would be of no interest to the dead. Neither can it be held that he is under greater obligation to give his life to protect money that he holds in trust, as when he serves as collector or carrier.

Nevertheless there is genuine admiration for the chap who when accosted by one of these marauding outlaws, puts up a good fight. It often happens that the outlaw is as badly scared as his victim, and would halt at the first sign of resistance, but no timid person ever will put the matter to the test.

Every reformed bandit will give the advice to the footpad victim that he yield at once and without question. This advice must be pleasing to the footpad not yet reformed.

The truth is that in the face of a menacing gun most men are too scared to act according to any plan. They are paralyzed with fright. This is what makes so lucrative the vocation of the footpad.

If men did not get rattled at the attempt to rob them, many a robber might be made either to bite the dust, or to kick up a cloud of it in his effort to make a get-away. The footpad banks on the quality of cowardice. He may be afraid, but he feels assured that the other fellow will be worse scared, and generally is right.

Students of the university that recently was the scene of a spirited bit of hazing, have been warned that they must abandon the practice. Probably they will not abandon it wholly, being young and human, but they will be likely to exercise unwonted caution.

The chap who has thus interfered with scholastic sport had been chosen as the victim of hazers, but declined, and turned loose with a gun.

The chap who says he killed a woman for fear that she might become a dope fiend had a less plausible excuse than most fake reformers. The truth seems to have been that he desired to marry the woman, first getting a divorce, and her desires failed to coincide. He had a wife of his own, and some children. Perhaps a finer sense of duty would have led him to protect them.

The late Mrs. Bell of San Francisco willed her large fortune away from her children on the ground that they were not her children. They were confident that she was their mother, although they were not particularly proud of it, and in court had no difficulty in establishing the relationship.

Now it is to be hoped that the Bell fortune may cause some happiness. It never yet has done so.

Probation was denied the driver in a fatal accident. He must go to the penitentiary, with a minimum sentence of a year.

It is highly probable that probation would have been given save for the fact that after his machine had struck the victim, he rushed it away without inquiry or proffer of aid.

No driver really fit to be loose on the highway would have done that.

Showing the ferocity of men engaged in smuggling drugs across the border from Mexico may be cited an act ascribed to them. An American negro was believed to have betrayed some of the band. The rest captured the negro, forced him to dig his own grave, shot him, and tumbled him into it.

Such is the material with which officials engaged in the war on dope have to deal. Nobody would counsel the officers to rely on argument or gentle methods.

There is a Los Angeles family in which the parents, still young, have a flock of eleven. As each has reached the age where it is possible to indicate its mental tendency, it has shown an inclination for music, and for some particular instrument. Not many domestic circles insure harmony by raising their own orchestra.

The interesting point about this brood is that they all look happy, healthy and well clad. The father is a welfare worker among Mexican employees of the Pacific Electric. It may be assumed that his income is not great. None of the children is yet old enough to be a wage-earner.

Some thrifty souls manage this sort of thing, and other souls, wishing of being thrifty, observe with amazement, and wonder helplessly how it is accomplished.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

When I was still too tiny to protect myself against my parents they played a low trick on me. They "taught me to save."

"Mamma will put little John's nickel in the savings bank," they said, "and when he is twenty-one years old he will have enough money saved up to buy him a horse."

Now, I didn't expect to want a horse when I was twenty-one years old. I refused to admit that Mamma had the right to rifle me for a nickel, even if she were of a more commanding presence and as full of good intentions as any big nation dealing with a little one. I had earned that nickel myself through the multitudinous activities thrust boyward by adults. The chances are that I had done seven times as much work for that nickel as could be extorted out of the hired man for twice the sum. Yet I was expected to be grateful.

Hence the older Pilgrims taught the hope of the family not to save so much as to hate. Likewise I early learned to hide any stray nickels that came my way. Likewise I early learned to hide any stray nickels that came my way. Likewise I early learned to hide any stray nickels that came my way.

But—that was my nickel, and the only way to assert and maintain a proprietary right in it was to spend it. Whereas, if it jiggled out of my small jeans some night it would not only be impounded and saved for me, but I ran the risk of getting whipped for concealing it, plus an additional whipping for the inevitable lie told in the desperate effort to protect myself and my nickel. I never believed that I would ever see any of those vanished nickels when I was twenty-one.

As a matter of fact I do not know that I ever did. Parents are honest, but sometimes forgetful.

The argument is that my worthy father and devoted mother failed to inculcate a yearn for saving in me. They did just the other thing. They taught me to spend surreptitiously, and therefore unwisely, to conceal my gains from them, and to lie about it. It did not occur to me until long after I had grown up that there must be some better way to teach the child the very necessary lesson of saving money.

I've found the way. Four years ago I gave my small nephew a bond on which he could draw down five dollars in dividends at Christmas—and let him draw 'em down and spend 'em. He isn't so very large, but of his own motion he has bought two more bonds since then. One of them isn't quite paid for, but never mind. He's paying. He got the idea. He's a terribly normal boy, too.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

Although anthrax carrying wool can be disinfected successfully, no method has yet been devised whereby hides and skins can be effectively treated without damaging them.

BOOTLEG FINES PAY OHIO CITY EXPENSES

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 23.—
(United Press.)—Bootleg fines are saving scores of Ohio cities from financial ruin.

“Illicit Whiskey Money” is building schools, replenishing depleted municipal funds and in several villages during the last twelve months has amounted to more than double the total regular tax collections.

During that time, Ohioans paid more than two million dollars in fines for violation of state and federal liquor laws. They paid many thousands of dollars more for violating local liquor laws.

More than three quarters of a million dollars of the total amount collected on state and federal violations was turned over to the municipalities, in addition to the large amounts they collected on local law violations. Some towns paid firemen's salaries from liquor fines and others “put their money back into the business,” by employing detectives to secure evidence on a commission basis.

A backyard court on the edge of Toledo paid Adams township $24-
000, all of which will go to road repair and other expenses. The court was operated by Justice of the Peace Tremblay in a shed just across the city boundary.

Tremblay employed a “sponge squad” of four men and Adams county commissioners now boast they will soon have the best roads in Lucas county.

A new town hall, jail and fire station will be built in Fairview, just out of Cleveland, from fines collected by Justice Galtman.

Albert W. Farren, “praying mayor” of East Palestine, near Youngstown, brought his village $25,000 in liquor fines. He personally led most of the raids and always prayed fervently before starting out.

Although several towns are opposed to using whiskey money to building improvements, Ashland frankly announced stiff fines for dry law violations, for the express purpose of recouping its finances.

Several small villages on the outskirts of larger cities got rich raiding the saloons of the cities and

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

GIRL OF MINE

Oh, her frock is crisp and white
And her hair is curled up tight
To her roguish little head, just like an aureole o'
light;
Not a heart but she could win
With the ribbon at her chin,
And her cheeks that have such very little merry dimples in.

Ah, the laughter in her eyes
And the wonder and surprise
As she toddles through the waving grass in search of butterflies;
And the flowers nod and sway
In their love of her and say
By their homage as she passes she's a fairer flower than they.

As, the sweetness and the grace
In her radiant little face
As she scampers through the sunlight in her airy, fairy race;
How the roguish laughter trips
From the gateway of her lips
Like the lifting of the robin through the leafy bough that slips.

And the birds in branches high
Seem to join her merry cry
And to chirp a fearless greeting as she gaily toddles by,
And so light her footsteps fall
That the clover blossoms call:
“See! She stopped on us in passing but we're scarcely bruised at all!”

bringing those arrested to justice in village courts.

The most striking example of this practice was Milford, a Cincinnati suburb of 1500 inhabitants.
Mayor M. B. Scott faced a gloomy prospect of operating the village's government on a tax income which would be $37,420, if everybody paid up.

Smith then began a series of raids on Cincinnati saloons that inside of a year netted his village $154,432—four times the total taxes.

Streets were repaired, the light plant ran continuously again and a large surplus was left in the general fund. The mayor now plans to allow the school board to appropriate money from the whiskey fines for a new school building and auditorium.

Few of the larger cities of the state took advantage of their opportunities to reap a lucrative harvest from liquor law enforcement. But the villages were ever on the alert to enforce dry laws to the limit.
